

Performance Analyst – Fixed Income

Our Client is a major institution in Investment Management, with over £150bn assets under management. Their Fixed Income team is currently seeking a Performance Analyst to take up an esteemed position within the team.

You must be very confident in your Fixed Income knowledge, as you will be required to speak the language of Fixed Income constantly throughout the working day from Day One. This is therefore a great opportunity to align your Performance career directly with the Front Office and Fund Management.

From the off you will be working with the Fund Managers, opening up to further Front Office interaction as the role develops. You will also gain an exposure to more exotic products like Derivatives as the role moves on from the initial project of developing the processes and systems for the traditional Fixed Income products. The development of these current systems will be carried out in conjunction with the Fund Managers. You will be required to voice your opinion to assist in these improvements. This really is a very Front-facing Performance role, and a great platform to exhibit your knowledge of Fixed Income.

The ideal candidate will have a solid background in Performance analytics and Fixed Income. This would suit someone who is looking to not just build on their already impressive experience, but to pro-actively utilise it.
